“We are honored to be included among Michigan's recognized treatment providers,” said Jeremy Carmean, CEO of Skywood Recovery. “This acknowledgment reflects the commitment of our clinical, medical, and support teams who work every day to help individuals and families navigate recovery and move forward with support and connection.”

Located in Augusta, Michigan, Skywood Recovery provides treatment for substance use and co-occurring mental health conditions in a structured, supportive environment. The facility offers multiple levels of care, including detox, residential treatment, partial hospitalization, intensive outpatient programming, and virtual outpatient services.

AddictionResource.net's Michigan rankings are intended to help individuals and families better understand available treatment options throughout the state, including information related to levels of care, insurance coverage, and specialized treatment services.

“We know individuals and families are often searching for reliable information when considering treatment options,” said Courtney Quick, Director of Business Development for Skywood Recovery. “We are proud to be included as a resource for those seeking care and support.”
